Curriculum, assessment, communication, staff workload, professional development, parent engagement: AI touches every one of them, and the schools that thrive will be those whose leaders set the direction early, wisely, and humanely. This 2-day, fully hands-on workshop gives school leaders both the strategic view and the personal skill. No technical background needed.

Workshop Objectives

By the End of 2 Days, You Will Be Able To

See the whole-school map of AI
— where it helps in teaching, assessment, administration, communication, and staff well-being.

Gain real, hands-on AI fluency
— not theory — so you can coach your staff and model confident AI use.

Draft the foundations of a school AI-use policy
— privacy, accuracy, integrity, student safety.

Lead AI conversations with confidence
— with staff, parents, and the community.

Judge any AI tool or vendor pitch against solid policy foundations — no salesperson can steer your school off course.

Hands-On In The Room — Complete At Least 3 Real Tasks

Build your own AI project-management tools
— with plain English, for the way YOUR school runs.

Create a working tool that lightens your current workload
— and take it home the same day. No coding, no software cost.

Draft your school's AI vision statement and guiding principles — in your school's voice.

Generate a one-page AI-use policy
— staff use, student use, privacy and academic integrity.

Design a 6–12 month AI roadmap
— quick wins, training, parents, reporting.

Turn raw survey/results data into patterns, concerns, and recommended actions.

Anticipate the hard questions
— plagiarism, over-reliance, equity — with considered answers.

We are confident that participants will leave our workshop with a draft school AI policy, a 6–12 month implementation roadmap, and 3 working leadership tools — all built during the two days, ready to present to your school board.
